Record-setting economic development results show growth is accelerating across Alabama

Alabama's economy is flexing its muscles these days, and the signs are everywhere. We've been experiencing record employment levels and posting the lowest jobless rates the state has ever seen. Exports of our "Made in Alabama" goods set a new annual record in 2022.

Now, we're getting another powerful signal that Alabama's economy is gaining strength. Last year, economic development projects across Alabama generated commitments for over $10.1 billion in new capital investment, making 2022 the best year ever. That figure smashes the old record of $8.7 billion in new investment, set back in 2018.

These new growth projects will supercharge the momentum that we have been building in our economy in recent years. In fact, economic development projects in Alabama since 2017 have spurred the creation of over 78,000 jobs across the state. I'm very proud of that fact.

The most recent successes are detailed in the new 2022 Alabama Economic Development Impact Report, prepared by the Alabama Department of Commerce. This annual report card on the state's economic development performance indicates Alabama remains an extremely attractive location for corporate growth plans.

Strategic economic development has been a top priority of my Administration since I first became Governor because I fully understand the impact it can have on our citizens, their families and their communities. The results outlined in this report provide me with renewed confidence that our efforts are producing a brighter future for the great State of Alabama.

Kay Ivey
Governor of Alabama

$10 billion in new investment projects will act as rocket fuel for Alabama's economy

Commerce Sec. Greg Canfield speaks at an groundbreaking event to celebrate Novelis' plans to invest more than $2.5 billion to build a new low-carbon recycling and rolling plant in Baldwin County.

It was nothing short of a remarkable year for Alabama's economic development team. Not only did these professionals secure numerous high-impact growth projects for the state during 2022, but they also managed to set records while doing it. Their efforts are creating exciting new career opportunities for Alabama citizens and enhanced growth possibilities for both the state's rural communities and its urban centers.

Our 2022 Alabama Economic Development Impact Report shows that Alabama generated $10.1 billion in new capital investment from economic development projects last year, establishing a new annual record. This figure tops the previous record of $8.7 billion, set in 2018, by a whopping 16%. And it far outpaces the 2021 total of $7.7 billion, the second highest annual total.

There's a lot of good news to unpack in this report. For instance, foreign direct investment in Alabama topped $5.5 billion during 2022, the highest figure in a decade. FDI, as it's called, remains an important driver for Alabama's economy, linking us with corporate partners in Germany, Japan, South Korea, Canada and other countries. The year brought FDI to Alabama industries such as automotive and aviation.

Significantly, the 2022 results also indicate the growth potential of rural Alabama is being unlocked. Projects announced last year are poised to bring nearly $1.8 billion in new investment, along with 1,900 jobs, to Alabama "targeted," or rural, counties. Since 2020, rural Alabama has been selected for growth projects involving $4 billion in investment and 5,500 job commitments. This demonstrates our firm commitment to sparking economic growth in Alabama's rural areas — a commitment we're making for the long haul.

In total, the report shows that projects completed in 2022 generated over 13,000 job commitments across Alabama, with many of them in key industry sectors. This includes over 2,800 new positions in the automotive industry, nearly 1,900 in the metals and advanced materials sector, and more than 1,500 in aerospace/aviation/defense.

Successes in 2022 included the recruitment of Novelis' fully integrated aluminum mill to Bay Minette as the first facility of its kind constructed in the nation for over four decades. With an initial investment of $2.5 billion, it represents Alabama's largest project in over a decade.

Another win is First Solar's $1.1 billion solar panel manufacturing facility in Lawrence County, which will create over 700 jobs. It represents the biggest investment made in a project in rural Alabama for many years, if not ever.

Familiar global brand names including Airbus, Hyundai and Toyota all announced growth projects in Alabama last year.

Smaller projects also can have a major impact. One example: Advanced ATC announced plans for a remote air traffic control tower center in Selma that could revolutionize air space management in the U.S. through its technology to serve multiple airports from one location.

All of this tells me Alabama's economic development team is making a real difference in shaping the future of our state. And, while we're proud of setting records, we're just going to keep on working to deliver a better tomorrow for Alabama.
