Solid 2023 economic development results position Alabama for new opportunities and continued growth

Alabama's economy is riding a massive wave of momentum, and it's hard to miss the signs. Employment levels are reaching new highs, and solid job opportunities are available for our citizens across the state. For the second straight year, Alabama companies set an impressive annual record for exports.

And new opportunities keep multiplying, thanks to economic development projects in 2023 that generated over $6.4 billion in capital investment and over 8,095 job commitments. This success is outlined in the 2023 New & Expanding Industry Announcements Report, being released today by the Alabama Department of Commerce.

Since 2021, as our entire country began to slowly emerge from the pandemic's economic disruptions, Alabama's economic development team has secured projects involving over $24 billion in investment and 31,000 jobs.

That's the strongest three-year economic development performance in recent memory — and perhaps in state history.

It's not just Alabama's big cities that have benefited from this activity. Alabama's "targeted" or rural counties saw $1.7 billion in new capital investment last year, reflecting our concentrated focus on rural development.

This will create around 1,700 new career opportunities benefiting families and communities from one end of rural Alabama to the other.

But it's really the future I'm excited about.

Last year, I signed a package of economic development bills called "The Game Plan" that will help supercharge Alabama's economic growth in coming years. The elements of this plan are going to keep our winning streak in economic development alive.

Meanwhile, we're determined to remain a national leader in workforce development — and we're taking strategic steps to make sure we stay there. We're also developing innovative solutions to get more Alabamians into the workforce by removing the barriers keeping them out.

Looking down the road, I've asked our Commerce Secretary, Ellen McNair, to spearhead the development of a completely reimagined version of our strategic economic development growth plan so that we can have a plan for the 2030s today.

This much is certain: I'm confident that Alabama will meet each and every challenge as we strive to create an environment that makes all the top companies in the world want to call our state home.

Alabama team delivers solid 2023 economic development results as we begin preparing a new playbook to ensure future success

I'm very pleased to share the 2023 New & Expanding Industry Announcements Report with Alabama's citizens today. This annual report card provides a detailed look at Alabama's economic development performance and indicates whether our state remains an attractive location for corporate growth plans.

The top-line results for 2023 show that Alabama's economic development team continues to punch above its weight. Last year, the team delivered new capital investment exceeding $6.4 billion through 184 projects locating in 43 different Alabama counties.

The list includes high-impact projects that will build on the strong track record we've established in recent years:

- Hyundai announced a major investment in its Montgomery plant to produce high-quality, new-generation vehicles that are in high demand with drivers across the nation.
- German appliance maker Miele is including Alabama in its long-term strategic plans by locating its first U.S. production hub in Opelika, creating hundreds of jobs.
- Sierra Pacific is building its most modern window and door plant in Phenix City, where it will create 300 jobs and deliver a massive economic impact for the region.

Though I am new to the job of Commerce Secretary, I have been an economic developer for a long time, and I know the positive effects our work can have on the lives of the people. That makes what's outlined in this report so important.

And it's why I will strive to make sure that Commerce and Alabama's economic development team will be prepared for whatever challenges the future will bring, ensuring that we can bring home even more great career opportunities for citizens across the state.

We're now embarking on a mission to develop a new economic development strategic plan to replace the highly successful Accelerate Alabama plan that launched in 2012. We're committed to formulating a bold, inclusive and comprehensive strategy that will provide a sustainable road map for future success.

Moving forward, I pledge to bring to Commerce a sense of thoughtfulness and creativity infused with an intensity as to how we deploy our resources so that we will always be good stewards of the funding we receive as Alabama's lead economic development agency.

We'll work hard to maintain — and even expand — the partnerships we've forged with all our allies at every level, especially at the local level, where so much of the blocking and tackling of the economic development work is done. We're going to be great team players.

After all, collaboration and teamwork represent the chief ingredients when it comes to successful economic development.

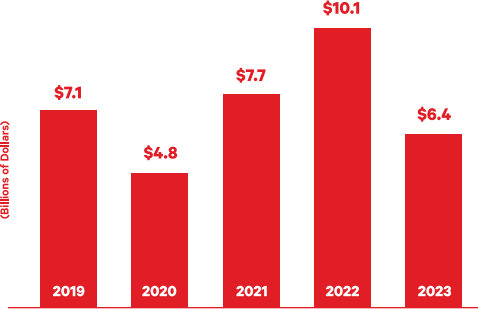

Ellen McNair
Secretary of Commerce
